ISSUP FORUM

Launch

SHARE, DISCUSS AND LEARN ABOUT
MATTERS WITHIN THE PREVENTION
AND TREATMENT FIELDS

FORUM.ISSUP.NET

We are pleased to announce today's launch of our Forum. The ISSUP Forum provides an opportunity to share, discuss and learn about matters within the prevention and treatment as well as related fields. It will include opportunities for online training and webinars and other means of networking and communicating key issues relevant to ISSUP's work.

As an organisation, ISSUP strives to provide a global platform to share evidence-based, high quality and ethical policy and practice and build an international community of like-minded professionals working in the substance use prevention and treatment fields. The Forum plays an important part in advancing ISSUP's mission. Head over to the ISSUP Forum to start sharing your knowledge and learn from others.

This week's newsletter features a range of interesting articles, including a white paper that assesses the need for a re-evaluation of pre-service educational programmes that look to prepare students for a career in healthcare, alongside a study that examines the risks of mixing alcohol with energy drinks.

This edition also provides information on free online courses on opioid addiction. The courses are designed to offer an evidence-based view of the opioid crisis and challenge preconceptions with the goal of reducing the stigma attached to opioid addiction, treatment and recovery.

Visit our website for more of the latest information from the field of drug prevention and treatment. If there's anything else you'd like to read about in our newsletter or see on our website, feel free to send us an email at info@issup.net.
