The situation with COVID-19 is changing by the day and we are aware that many of our readers and members will have had their lives affected by the pandemic.

It's so important that we keep in mind what the anxiety, uncertainty and stress of the global pandemic will do in the case of substance use and people suffering from substance use disorders. There is a clear need for us to stay ahead in terms of supporting fellow professionals and colleagues who are dealing with the impacts of the pandemic on vulnerable populations.

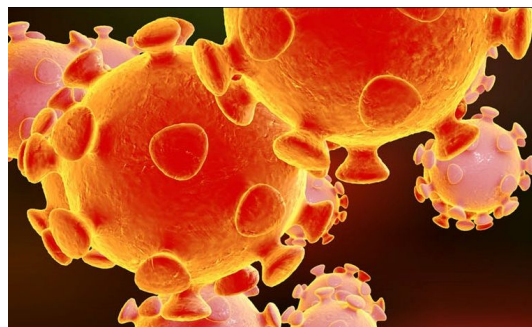

We are wishing you and your families well during these challenging times. Take care of yourselves and each other.

Coronavirus Support Network

The ISSUP website now has a dedicated coronavirus support network to help facilitate the sharing of information and experiences across the network. New resources are being added daily so please share the network link with your colleagues and friends.
